

Overview

The aims of this collaborative are simple: to improve the health outcomes of people with a learning disability.

The SWLDC provides a valuable function in connecting people across the region and beyond who have an interest in improving outcomes for people with a learning disability.

Next steps

In the last few months, the SWLDC has seen a surge in engagement and appetite for collaboration.

There is no other group of stakeholders who could provide such a wide range of expertise and practical know-how.

The collaborative currently has over 500 members, increasing at a rate of around 25% a year.

Impacts so far

Many webinars and workshops have been delivered to a range of audiences, with attendees spread across the country

Over 9000 carers were trained using Train the Trainer and videos supporting this training continue to be widely shared across the NHS, with over 350,000 views

Annual Health Check videos coproduced with NHSE and Misfits Theatre company viewed over 10,000 times so far.

Supported the wider NHSE agenda by helping with the roll out of Virtual Wards and NHS@Home, providing case studies for the role out of Martha's rule roll out and more.